U.S. Senate to Hold Historic Hearing on Homeless Hate Crimes

Hi Friend,

The United States Senate Committee on the Judiciary, Subcommittee on Crime and Drugs, has scheduled a hearing entitled “Crimes Against America’s Homeless: Is the Violence Growing?” The hearing is set for Wednesday, September 29, 2010 at 10:00 a.m. in Room 226 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building. The featured topic of the hearing will be the Hate Crimes Against the Homeless Statistics Act (S. 1765), legislation introduced by Senator Ben Cardin (D-MD, top right) and Senator Susan Collins (R-ME, bottom right) that would direct the Federal Bureau of Investigation to gather data on bias-motivated crimes against people experiencing homelessness.

This hearing advances NCH’s legislative agenda significantly and is an important step forward on the path to Bring America Home. After some research, we believe this hearing to be the first held by the United States Congress that specifically and exclusively addresses a homeless civil rights issue. NCH was given the privilege and responsibility of recommending witnesses for the hearing. Following the hearing, NCH staff will be escorting the witnesses to key members of House and Senate.

Support NCH today as we hold the first ever congressional hearing on homeless civil rights.

We’re Hiring: Director of Education and Training

@HardlyNormal Stops By the Office

Social Media advocate Mark Horvath, known as “HardlyNormal” to his Twitter followers, has taken his experience of being homeless on the road over the past year. Traveling from one side of the country and back again in a car donated by Ford, Mark has been documenting stories of people experiencing homelessness and sharing these stories through his blog, Invisiblepeople.tv, and social networking sites. He has increased awareness about homelessness and reached online audiences across the globe. Mark was also invited to “guest moderate” YouTube for a day, where a special video message along with Invisiblepeople.tv’s video posts were highlighted on the YouTube home page.

Recently Mark came to DC and while in town stopped by the NCH office. It was fantastic to meet such a great advocate for ending homelessness, check out this interview Mark taped.
The US Census Bureau announced the finding from its annual report: Income Poverty and Health Insurance Coverage in the United States: 2009. The Census reported a poverty rate of 14.3% or 43.6 million Americans, slightly lower than the grim predictions of 14.8 to 15 percent. The 14.3% poverty rate jumped from last year’s 13.2 and is the highest rate since 1994.

The new poverty rate is the clearest indicator-to-date to prove that social constraints prevent those living in poverty from working and just as clearly refutes the notion that those living in poverty choose not to work, though given the opportunity.

The 2009 report will be the last year, since the reporting began in 1959, when only certain categories of under-reporting will occur. Read the rest on the blog.
